

Many transfer students have credits, and even degrees, earned at other colleges and universities, including several located in other countries. Also, in some cases, transfer students working on associate degrees from certain 2-year schools may desire to earn credit at Lamar University and have that credit transferred back to the sending institution (reverse articulation). To facilitate ease of transfer to Lamar for such students, Lamar has established formal course-by-course and reverse articulation agreements with numerous institutions. These articulation agreements may be very beneficial to students considering transfer. Additionally, all collegiate coursework earned at 2- or 4-year institutions not listed here will be evaluated during transfer admission.
