On April 26, 2012 Computer Science STAIRSTEP member Tyler Drews gave a presentation concerning the STAIRSTEP program to two separate classes at Lamar State College Orange. The first class, Biology for non-science majors, consisted of approximately 20 – 30 students. Most of these students did not show any interest in the STAIRSTEP program as it did not relate to their major, however some did show interest in enrolling at Lamar University after earning their degree at LSCO. The second class, Programming I, consisted of only about 10 students, but some of them did show interest in the STAIRSTEP program especially after hearing about the research done in Computer Science.

Overall I think this trip to LSCO was very beneficial as it gave the students a chance to learn more about Lamar University and the STAIRSTEP program. I think it also paved the way for future visits to LSCO. Hopefully by then there will be more STAIRSTEP members able to participate and more time available to talk to more students.
