Lamar University Spring Open House - Saturday, April 2, 2011

High school students and college transfers attended this special day packed with fun and information tailored for students and their parents. Spring Open House aims to help new students discover all Lamar University has to offer - from the classroom to campus life.

STAIRSTEP students Nick Lanning and William Ware from Physics, Lucas Castle and Katie Bryant from Mathematics, and Nick Brandes from Earth and Space Sciences attended the Lamar Spring Open. They operated two booths, one inside the Wimberly building with a poster and handouts and the other outside with demonstrations. They were able to catch the eye and interact with hundreds of students who were new to the university.

“It’s always fun to use our demonstrations and show off what we’ve learned through our experience in STAIRSTEP. It is also rewarding to know that I’m helping to recruit a new group of students who will get to have the positive experience that I have.”

“I love spinning my bicycle wheel and letting the conservation of angular momentum keep the axle upright in my hand. The best part is, so does everyone else. I am totally awesome, almost as awesome as STAIRSTEP.”
