About the Program

The first week of the program is based in Hiroshima, where our partnership with Yasuda Women’s University offers students unique opportunities to learn in a parallel collegiate atmosphere, complete with home stays with local families. Students will then travel by shinkansen to Kyoto and Tokyo. Learning the language and encountering culture in an intimate, authentic setting will inform and enhance the study of Japanese literature, the topic of the program’s course.

While many discussions of the relations of America and Japan revolve around the ethics of using the atomic bomb as well as American occupation and influence, fewer conversations exist around the literature surrounding both. In this course, we’ll move beyond the war in an effort to provide a multi-faceted introduction to Japanese literature and to examine the ways in which the echoes of war influence contemporary writers.
