- If you already have an A, no need to take the final
- If you want to improve your grade to bring it up to a better letter grade, take your lowest test score and add 5 times the difference between your current average ~~to~~ ^{and} your target grade, that would be the grade that you need to make for your final.

e.g. if you currently average 78, and your lowest test score is 60, your target grade is B (or 80), then you need to make at least $60 + 5 \cdot (80 - 78) = 60 + 10 = 70$ on your final in order to make a B.

if you currently average 71, your lowest test score is 60, your ~~target~~ target grade is B, then you need at least $60 + 5 \cdot (80 - 71) = 60 + 5 \cdot 9 = 60 + 45$ which is 105, NOT POSSIBLE, for your final.
